President's Message

Our Farm Fair will be on August 28 - 31, 2008. We would greatly appreciate all the help for plant sales and security for the display.

The security is just to watch for people who don't look at the "DO NOT TOUCH" signs and to pass out our flyers with information of our club for those who may want to join us.

The plant sales people sell plants of course and answer questions about the plants and orchid growing.

On our set-up date August 27, 2008 we will need help to place the plants and cover the pots with moss. Dinner will be catered by Marks Place. No Makana points will be given for set up,

Our break-down and clean-up day is Sunday, August 31st at 3:30 p.m. and who ever comes out to clean up will receive Makana points. So sign up for Makana points on the day of clean up.

Maryetta Scuito Presents "Growing Orchids as a Hobby"

We would like to thank Maryetta Scuito of Maui for her Power Point presentation on Growing Orchids as a Hobby, and her detailed handouts that are reprinted below. This was a Potluck Evening and the GIOS members did themselves proud.

Five Basic Factors Influence the Growth of your Plants

1. Water: quality, quantity and frequency
2. Air: quality and movement, for gas exchange
3. Nutrition: fertilize, vitamins, alcohol
4. Temperature
5. Sunlight: The energy that makes food for the plant (photosynthesis).

Water

- Hand watering vs. irrigation system. Key: that all parts of the plants are adequately watered.
- Frequency: really dependent on the other four factors and how they interrelate in your area
- Watering in the morning helps avoid heat stress. The evaporation will cool orchids and increase humidity.
- Always water thoroughly so it flushes through the pot bottom. Never allow the plant to sit in accumulated water.
- Most orchids are killed by over watering...never from an infrequent lack of water.

Air

- Orchids do not like stagnant air.
- You want fresh, moving air-day and night. They grow 24 hours a day. DO NOT OVERCROWD YOUR PLANTS. Keep areas around and below growing benches plant and weed free.

Nutrition

- "Weakly, weekly."
- There are as many answers to "What should I fertilize with?" as there are growers.
- Water your plants thoroughly before you foliar feed your plants... they will absorb more of the fertilizer.

Fertilizer Basics

- NPK Ratio:
- Nitrogen (N): promotes stem & leaf growth. Be sure from ammonical and/or nitrate form, not urea form of nitrogen for orchids.
- Phosphorus (P): promotes flowering
- Potassium (K): promotes strong roots, stem rigidity and disease resistance.

A balanced, ie.: 20-20-20, fertilizer is good for most mediums used to grow orchids.

Temperature/Humidity

We are blessed in Hawaii in that we do not have to control these elements. It does affect what we can choose to grow and flower, but we do not have to heat or cool our greenhouses. We may need to adjust other factors as our season changes and temperatures fluctuate: ex. frequency of water/fertilizer. Low 60's to 80's in temperature and 60-90% humidity is ideal for most orchids.

Sunlight and Shade

Ideal lighting for maximum growth is a full day of unobstructed sunlight (away from tall trees and buildings) with 60-65% shade. This can be accomplished with shade cloth, wooden lath (lattice), dyna-glass, or combinations of these. Some orchids require more or less shade.

A Spectacular Orchid Show at Moir Gardens in Poipu

The next time you are in the vicinity of Poipu, drop in at Kiahuna Plantation Restaurant to see one of the most beautiful floral displays on the island. Ben Melchor, who is a gardener at Kiahuna, has planted and nurtured over 1,000 orchids in the historical Moir Gardens. Although most of them are Dendrobium orchids planted in rock, there are a few cattleya and phalaenopsis growing under the trees as well. Most of the plants were given to Ben by visitors as they left the island and Ben has been lovingly planting and caring for them as a hobby—you normally find him around the estate looking after the irrigation system. He refers to the orchids as his “babies”.

They were all in full bloom in June but there are still plenty to admire as of this writing—July 26th. Kiahuna plantation and the entrance to the restaurant and Moir Gardens is across from the Poipu Shopping Center. Coming from the Poipu By-Pass Road and on to Poipu Road, you turn left across from the entrance to the shopping village. Joe’s on the Green and the Kiahuna Golf Club Entrance is to the right.

Stroll at your leisure and you might want to try a cocktail and or dinner at the Plantation Restaurant.
